Protecting & Improving
the Health of Iowans

The Bureau of Environmental Health Services strives to ensure the protection of environmental health by providing technical assistance and services to local environmental health departments, local boards of health and all Iowans. Bureau staff ensure the protection of environmental health in swimming pools and spas, tattoo establishments and migrant labor camps. We verify that water treatment devices, such as water filters, perform appropriately and as claimed by the manufacturer. We also issue professional licenses and certifications.

Did you know? Annual inspections for tattoo establishments and pool facilities are conducted by qualified staff of local boards of health in 97 of Iowa's 99 counties.

Why are Environmental Health Protection programs important to protecting and improving the health of Iowans?

- The Backflow Program ensures the individuals testing and repairing backflow prevention assemblies are knowledgeable in performing these tasks to protect Iowa's drinking water supply.
- The Migrant Labor Camp program provides sanitation and health standards relating to the construction, operation and maintenance of migrant labor camps to reduce the risk of communicable disease transmission and injury among migrant farm workers.
- The Plumbing and Mechanical Systems Board licenses individuals who work on the plumbing, HVAC, refrigeration and hydronic systems and equipment, which helps eliminate the threat of contaminating city and county water supplies, and prevents major accidents associated with faulty equipment installations.
- The Swimming Pool and Spa program works to reduce the number of recreational water illnesses transmitted through swimming pools and spas, and to minimize the number of serious injuries and drowning incidents associated with swimming pools and spas throughout the state.
- The Tattoo program ensures that all tattoo artists and establishments meet the criteria to be permitted in Iowa.
- The Water Treatment program ensures the system you purchase performs as advertised by the manufacturer/seller to reduce the specified health-related contaminants, and verifies claims are truthful and accurate.
- The Lead Professional Certification Program aims to reduce the number of lead-poisoned children in Iowa.

Which Iowa Public Health Goals are we working to achieve?

- Protect against environmental hazards
- Prevent epidemics & the spread of disease
- Prevent injuries & violence

What do we do?

- The Backflow Prevention Assembly Tester Registration program sets training standards for technicians who test backflow prevention devices and maintains a registry of qualified technicians.
- The IDPH Migrant Labor Camp Program permits operators providing housing to seven or more migrant agricultural workers who travel for the purpose of seasonal employment in agriculture.
- IDPH maintains the Iowa State Plumbing Code and Iowa State Mechanical Code, the minimum standards for plumbing and mechanical work in Iowa cities.
- IDPH reviews the health-related contaminant reduction claims of water treatment systems, and maintains a registry of systems that comply.
- The Swimming Pool and Spa program registers swimming pools and spas, establishes safety and sanitation criteria for their operation and use, establishes minimum qualifications for pool operators and lifeguards, and inspects facilities to make sure they are safe.
- The Tattoo program manages permits for permanent establishments, mobile establishments and temporary establishment permits, while ensuring all tattooing performed in Iowa is in accordance with applicable rules.
- The Lead Professional Certification program ensures that lead-based paint is identified and remediated according to work practice standards.
